

Behind every door, there's a story

What can happen in the privacy of a hotel room? Anything and everything, if you check into the Hotel China, a brilliant new collection of short fiction set in a hotel in the heart of Hong Kong's historic and notorious Wan Chai district.

Written by some of Hong Kong's finest authors, these twenty-six tales follow the exploits of the hotel's patrons and staff as they navigate the city's distractions and hazards in pursuit of their goals, be they love, money... or even murder!

Journalists, businessmen, grifters and prostitutes rub shoulders with cleaners, doormen and bell-boys: each story is individual as the characters that inspire them. And behind them all stands Hong Kong itself, the glittering reception hall for the political and economic powerhouse of China today.

Praise for previous Hong Kong Writers Circle anthologies:

'Sweat & the City' is an outstanding collection of Hong Kong short stories that inspires the budding writer and rewards readers.
South China Morning Post

'Hong Kong Whodunnits' will have you intrigued from start to finish.
The Parents' Journal

'Love & Lust's' appeal lies in the hybrid mixture of its contributors; their cultural perspectives resulting in widely differing (and often hilarious) takes on the theme.
HK Magazine

Joy Al-Sofi
Michael A. Ashton
Hollie Allman
Elisabeth Attwood
Mike Bishop
Alan Brown
Sarah Crosby
Mio Debnam
Leela Devi Panikar
Stefanie Dubois
Lawrence Gray
Ian Greenfield
Peter Gregoire
Ryan Harper
Melanie Ho
Noble Hughes
Lorraine McLelland
SCC Overton
Edmund Price
Cate Rocchi
Valerie Wilson Trower
Jane Wallace

The Hong Kong Writers Circle
www.hkwriterscircle.com

HOTEL CHINA

Hong Kong Writers Circle

Hong Kong Writers Circle